The Seven Ingredients of Resilience: Information for Parents

You've probably heard of the 3 R's: Reading, Writing, Arithmetic - a focus of education. What about the fourth R - Resilience? Resilience is the ability to bounce back from setbacks, learn from failure, be motivated by challenges, and believe in your own abilities to deal with stress and difficulties in life. Resilience skills are as important as the other 3R's. Why? Because every child's life will be touched by setbacks as well as achievement, pain as well as joy, loss as well as triumph. In order for children to reach their fullest potential, they need to know how to approach life with resilience. What you might not know is that, just like reading, writing, and arithmetic, resilience can be learned. Children can learn - from their parents, teachers, coaches - how to develop the skills of resilience. Resilience enables your child to thrive no matter what life puts in his or her path.

Resilience is not all or nothing. It comes in different amounts, you can be a little resilient, a lot resilient, or resilient in some situations but not others. No matter how resilient your child is today, you can help him or her become more resilient tomorrow. Research has identified a variety of important ingredients of resilience but there are seven that we can most easily teach our children.

Emotion awareness and control. Resilient people - adults and children - are comfortable with their feelings and they express them. They have a good understanding of their own emotions and they feel comfortable talking about what they are feeling with people they trust. Resilient children don't get “stuck” in an emotion. When an emotion is too strong, so strong that it interferes with the person's ability to cope, the resilient person knows how to control her emotions so that she is able to push forward with a plan of action.

Impulse Control. We all have impulses to do things and say things that aren't in our best interest or helpful or kind to others. Resilience doesn’t require that you stop having these impulses, but it does require you to stop yourself from acting on every impulse you have. Resilient children have internalized the “stop and think” message and use it to make choices about their actions. The good news is that impulse control can be learned. So even if your child is impulsive, you can learn some simple strategies to teach him to handle situations better.

Realistic Optimism. Optimism is another key ingredient of resilience. The research on optimism is clear: Optimistic people are happier, healthier, more productive, have better relationships, succeed more, are better problem solvers, and are less likely to become depressed than pessimistic people. Research shows that kids can learn these skills and that optimism and resilience protect children against depression and anxiety. Keep in mind, that we talk about “realistic optimism.” This is important. Resilience is not served by denying problems when they exist, believing that you never make mistakes, and blaming others whenever things go wrong. Resilience is about seeing yourself and situation as optimistically as you can - but within the bounds of reality. Realistic optimism keeps you shooting for the stars without losing sight of the ground below.

Flexible Thinking. Resilient children are flexible thinkers. They view problems from several different perspectives. When a resilient child has a fight with her best friend, she is able to view the situation from the friend’s perspective as well as her own. When a resilient child doesn’t do well on a test, he is able to come up with a variety of factors that might have led to the poor outcome. Why does this matter? It matters because flexible thinking increases the likelihood that you'll be able to generate a number of different ways to handle the situation so, if your first solution doesn't work, you'll have a Plan B ready.

Self Efficacy. A basic ingredient in resilience is belief in one’s self: self-confidence. Resilient children believe that they are effective in the world. They have learned what their strengths and weaknesses are, and they rely on their strengths to navigate the challenges in life. For one child this might mean using his sense of humor to deal with stress; for another child it might mean using her creativity to come up with new ways to handle problems. But don’t confuse self-efficacy with self-esteem. Self-esteem is about feeling good about one’s self and self efficacy is about affecting change in the world. The road to resilience is through self-efficacy, not self-esteem. If your child is confident and knows how to master what life throws in his path, self-esteem will follow.

Empathy. Resilient children are connected with others. In fact, some of the landmark studies in resilience show that children who have at least one enduring relationship with a caring adult (a parent, a neighbor, a teacher, a coach) do well and can overcome even the most difficult hardships. Empathy is an important component of strong social relationships. Children who care about others, are interested in other people’s feelings and experiences, and want to help others through tough times are more likely to have strong, healthy friendships. Empathy serves resilience by facilitating strong relationships. Children who have a strong network of friends and adults who care about them have a support system that they can turn to when they need help.

Reaching Out. Resilient children take risks. This doesn’t mean hurling themselves off mountaintops or riding motorcycles without helmets. It means appropriate, horizon expanding risks. Children who are resilient don’t see failure as something to be avoided. They are willing to try new things because deep down they know that by trying new things and taking risks they will learn more, achieve more, and enjoy life more. The risk taking might take the form of signing up for a hard class or talking with someone they’ve never met before or even just trying a new food. Their optimism fuels them and their self-efficacy gives them the confidence to try, even when that means risking failure.

Challenge yourself to use your resilience strengths more fully and see if you can devote some energy to increasing one of the ingredients you are low on.

Spring Play

The Maquoketa Valley Drama Department will present Jeremy Bloom’s Wilde Tales on May 4 (Friday) and May 5 (Saturday) at 7 p.m. Bloom took five of Oscar Wilde’s stories as well as some of his later work to create this adaptation.

“The Happy Prince”
The “happy prince” is a beautiful golden statue, decorated with jewels. During the prince’s lifetime, he was happy because he didn’t know what life was like outside of his palace. Only after he died and became a statue did he learn of the poor people’s struggle. The Happy Prince asks a swallow to help assist a few of the many poverty-stricken people.

“The Nightingale and the Rose”
A nightingale discusses with a young student his fears about losing the girl he loves. The girl will dance with him if he gives her a red rose. Pitying the student, the nightingale sacrifices in order to get a red rose for the young man. However, the sacrifice is in vain.

“The Selfish Giant”
A giant builds a wall around his garden to keep children out. As a result, winter settles in on his garden and will not leave while he’s being selfish. One day, he learns compassion from the children.

“The Devoted Friend”
A momma duck & her ducklings tell this story to a water rat. In the story, the rich Miller is a “devoted friend” of poor Hans. Really, he takes advantage of Hans, who always does everything that the Miller asks him to do. Hans is afraid he will lose the Miller's friendship or offend him.

“The Remarkable Rocket”
Remarkable Rocket is an arrogant firework. He believes he’s better than all of the other characters with whom he interacts. He also criticizes them for not appreciating him because he’s “great.” He fails in his true purpose.

“Come through the garden gate to a world where swallows, statues, and fireworks speak with all the wit of Oscar Wilde” (Playscripts.com). Stop by for a night filled with messages of love, compassion, loss, and self-importance Tickets ($5 a piece) can be picked up at the high school office beginning April 30 (Monday), or you can call the office and reserve your ticket.
As the month of May is here, baseball is in the air. We have officially begun practice as of April 30th. We have high hopes for this season as we return a solid nucleus of players. We will continue to work through the month of May to fine tune things in order to achieve some of our season goals. With that being said, there are some thank-you’s from the off-season that need to be made.

First, I would like to thank our Athletic Booster Club yet again. For those of you who don't know, the Booster Club purchased an indoor batting cage that has been installed in the gym in Earlville. The batting cage retracts from the ceiling and allows all activities to go on as normal in the gym in Earlville. Along with the batting cage, there was a roll of indoor turf that was purchased by the Booster Club as well that protects the gym floor and allows us to use real baseballs while using the cage. This project totaled over $10,000 with the cage and the turf and would not have been possible without the help of the Booster Club. This project definitely would not have been made possible without the help of some individuals to get the cage up and running. Terry Elgin, Brad Tucker, Ed Gibbs, Tyson Tucker, Trevor Elgin, Cole Willenbring and Heath Gibbs all helped out on a Saturday to install the cage. We appreciate everything that you guys did to help out that day!

There will be some positive changes at the baseball complex this summer as you come to some home games. Thanks to the Delhi Little League, the area that is currently sand by the batting cage will now be field turf. This will allow for better footing for our athletes who are using this area of the complex, as well as being less messy in damp temperatures. This being said, we do ask that when you are attending games at the complex, whether they be baseball, softball or little league games, that you ask your children be kind of this area and to keep rocks and trash off of the turf. This will help with the longevity of the turf and it will keep the area clean of clutter. A thank you to Jeff Frasher as well for donating his time and equipment to prep the sand area for the turf. We appreciate all of the help in making our facility top notch!

Our baseball team held a breakfast fundraiser in April to allow us to assist with some of the costs of the turf at the baseball field, as well as doing a couple projects of our own. A couple of additions that are currently not underway at the time of this writing, but will be starting once the weather turns nicer are an addition to the baseball press box for storage and a wider track area in front of our dugouts and behind home plate. In addition to these, we have also purchased a new indoor mound to use with our pitchers and some other equipment upgrades. We are still planning do do our cookie dough fundraiser in May to assist in the purchase of backstop padding to add to the fence behind home plate which will total more than $2,500.

There are many necessary thank-you’s for the breakfast. First and foremost, Terry Elgin deserves a HUGE thank-you for coming up with the idea and spearheading the whole process. Terry ordered all of the food and arranged the equipment and workers for cooking the food. Again, thank you Terry for all of your help with the whole process. Patty Wilson donated her time to be our kitchen help for the day. She was vital in her assistance in running the ovens and dishwasher as well as helping with organization in the kitchen throughout the day. We appreciate your help Patty! Members of the Earlville Fire Department donated their time as well to cook the food for our breakfast. This day would not have been possible without the help of those cooking the food. Thank you to the Earlville Fire Dept. for all of the help! To my players and their parents, thank you so much for all your hard work throughout the day. Coach Cassutt and I were blown away with the amount of parent and player help that we received. It was really great to see everything come together and work out the way that it did. Lastly, I would like to thank all of the people who supported Maquoketa Valley Baseball by attending the breakfast or donating to our baseball team. Without this support, we would not be able to give our athletes the advantage that we feel they have over our competition. We had three banks donate styrofoam cups and napkins to us to use at the breakfast. Thank you to Community Savings Bank, Heritage Bank and Citizen State Bank for the cups and napkins that were used. Lastly, I would like to thank all of the people who supported Maquoketa Valley Baseball by attending the breakfast or donating to our baseball team. Without this support, we would not be able to give our athletes the advantage that we feel they have over our competition. This is a great community and it showed with the amount of support we received at our breakfast and all of our fundraisers!

Maquoketa Valley’s SCHOLASTIC BOOK FAIR

The Scholastic Book Fair visited Maquoketa Valley on March 20 & March 22 during Spring Conferences in Delhi, but the excitement didn’t start there. Students spent the week before the Book Fair creating Wish Lists, previewing the Book Fair, and participating in a Pre-8 Coin War. The hallways were buzzing with an eagerness to earn some new books for our district classrooms and libraries. The Coin War winners also earned special prizes throughout the week. The competition got fierce as each Pre-5 classroom was eager to win privileges such as storytime with Mrs. Moenck (Teacher Librarian/Media Specialist), Chalk the Walk at the Delhi City Park, a crazy dress up day, lunch in the classroom, and other incentives. The elementary students (Pre-5) in all buildings (Delhi, Johnston, Earlville) were able to raise $2,281.54 to purchase new books for their classrooms. The Middle School students (grades 6-8) got excited about a separate bank of prizes: Technology Promotion (featuring Follett Shelf and Code.org), Hat Day, Free WIN Time, and Movie Day. For every $25 earned per grade, the students would cash in on another incentive. The Middle School students were able to raise $212.26 to purchase new books for their ELA classrooms. With the money earned over the course of the Coin War, teachers were able to purchase 335 new books for their classrooms (Pre-8). The students were thrilled! All of this excitement spilled over into the following week when the Book Fair opened to the public during Spring Conferences. The district sold over 1,300 books in just 2 days! With the profit earned from this year’s Book Fair, our district libraries have already been able to purchase 484 new books with many more to be purchased during the upcoming 2018-2019 school year. A big “Thank You” to everyone who contributed to the success of MV’s Scholastic Book Fair this year -- our classrooms, libraries, teachers, and students benefit greatly from your support!
