The Shell and Core by John Eiben

Why is a core a pit?
Why is a pit so dark?
Both are seeds of life,
But none quite like the heart.
We ask ourselves too much
"Is this life meant for me?"
Or "Why does God play games?"
"Is this my destiny?"

I break at every turn
Where chaos seeks me out.
Confusing to my soul
I ask "What's this about?"
Why blood is spilled for free.
Life is without cost
You say that it's barbaric
But not if life is lost.

What then do you prefer?
To judge us by our worth
Or by the things we do
And have done since our birth.
Pain is only skin deep
Unless you're very weak.
If so no one should harm you
And take pride in your defeat.

My placement in this world
Is a pebble on the beach
Encased by things of beauty
Kept out of my reach.
Reflect what glory gives
Spread a little light
When you can know your worth
You'll know you've done right.

Fine Artist of the Week

by Becki Burkle

Name: Ashley Kramer
Grade: 12
Being recognized for: Participation in individual speech.

What categories are you in this year? Poetry and Literary Program

What has been your favorite piece to perform?
The lit program that I am doing this year, because it is so much fun to perform- there is sadness, anger, and feelings of friendship.

What is your favorite part of speech? Besides the "fun" bus rides... and hanging out ALL DAY... I love being able to express myself in ways that most people don't see.

What is your best speech memory? Having gotten to state every season and asking Lalaina to marry me while spitting all over her.

What is your advice to fellow speech participants?
Don't be afraid to let loose and have fun let yourself become a part of the piece that you are performing.
