Ask Audrey

Dear Audrey,

I'm really concerned about a friend of mine who's losing a lot of weight and she doesn't weigh a lot to begin with. I'm afraid she's developing an eating disorder. What should I do?
 -A Friend in Need

Dear Friend in Need,

I've never personally run across this problem with my own friends but I know it is a common thing. What I would do is learn something about a few eating disorders so that way you can show your friend the symptoms and maybe he or she will realize their problem. If you need any help figuring out any information on eating disorders-ask Mrs. Downs, she teaches her Health II students about them every year.

Love Always,
 Audrey
