The Seniors won the competition 8 to 6 and have won the awesome secret super prize. It is so secret I can't tell you what you have won. Come to me if you want the prize and I will give you something. Make sure it is secret.

Spring Concert and Awards Night Held

Members of the choir perform as last week's spring concert. At the concert, senior awards were given. Amy Salow and Adam Ries won the senior vocal awards. The band also performed and Mr. Smith presented the instrumental awards. Adam Ries won all three band awards. (photo by Kelli Dabroski)

New Looks for the Books

The high school library took on a new look this week. Book shelves and tables have been moved, and some reference material has been discarded. Next year a study hall will be in the library every hour. (photo by Brian Wilson)

Bravo, Wildcat Echo staff, for a job well done!

Throughout the year, you have spent time outside of the school day to put together 26 impressive issues. Your time, talent, dedication and interest in your peers and MV have produced a well-read and highly anticipated publication. You should be proud of your work and remember that your work has affected the whole MV community. I must applaud the efforts of the editors for the leadership they've shown. As photo editor, Kathie Palmersheim has kept the paper filled with photos that capture the faces around school and coordinated the photography staff. Jessica Krogmann worked with an outstanding group of writers to report the news. As social page editor, Andrea Palmersheim led a quality staff. Miranda Knake filled the role of sports editor and more--and did it all so well. I appreciate the organization of these young women who made my job more fulfilling. I take great pride in what the staff has created.
